Training Centres

World Archery Excellence Centre

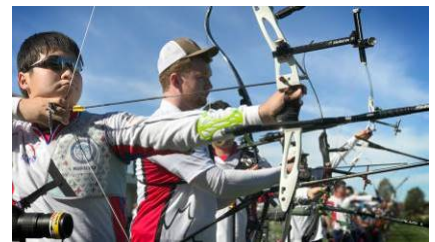

World Archery member associations are invited to come and train at the newly opened training centre located in Lausanne, Switzerland. The Excellence Centre is proud to have several high-level coaches, manage world-class facilities and provide opportunities for all to be educated in the sport of archery. Please feel free to contact info@worldarcherycentre.org for additional information and quotes.

The Centre will also host several judging and coaching courses throughout the year. Information to follow shortly.

Easton Archery Centre of Excellence

The Archery Centre in Chula Vista, California hosted a week-long training camp for 70 archers from five countries following The Vegas Shoot 2017, offering a chance for some nations to get a head start on the road to Tokyo 2020. Athletes trained together, simulated world-class competition and received advanced technical support from resident archery experts.

Wroclaw 2017

Tickets for the compound and field archery competitions at the 2017 World Games in Wroclaw, Poland went on sale on 23 February 2017. Four days of preliminary field archery competition are free for spectators and finals tickets start from 10 PLN (Polish Zloty), equivalent to $2.50 USD. Tickets are available to buy from Wroclaw 2017 partner eBilet.pl.

Vegas 2017

Jesse Broadwater successfully defended his compound men's Indoor Archery World Cup Champion title at the 2017 series finale in Las Vegas, USA, by beating reigning World Archery Field Champion Steve Anderson, 146 to 145 points, in front of a capacity Southpoint arena crowd.

The compound women's gold went to a Danish archer for the second year in a row, after Sarah Sonnichsen won the event in 2016. Tanja Jensen forged a lead over Andrea Marcos that was capped with a near-perfect finish.

Song Jiyung and London 2012 Olympic Champion Oh Jin Hyek took the recurve women's and men's gold medals after two all-Korean finals.

OS Guide

World Archery presents the new 2017-2020 Olympic Solidarity guide for member associations. The guide describes the different programmes available to assist in various member association projects, including scholarships, courses and education training.

Coaches can receive post graduate education training and coaching course training domestically or abroad at the World Archery Excellence Centre. Athletes may receive training scholarships for the Olympics, YOG preparation or Continental and Regional Games support to train domestically or abroad, particularly at the World Archery Excellence Centre.

An additional programme is for the development of a National Sport System and is targeted at countries who have recently created a national federation or that lack structure within their national federation.

Olympic Solidarity programmes can be a key driver for the development of archery in a country. Benefits can be seen in the improvement of youth and elite archers, the development of coaches, referees and officials in a country and for a country's national sport structure.

World Archery encourages all member associations to apply to OS programmes as soon as possible.

For assistance in applying and more information, please contact your NOC or the World Archery Development Department, Ms Christine Jennings at cjennings@worldarcherycentre.org.
