Berlin 2018

Turkish archer Mete Gazoz beat Lee Woo Seok of Korea with an incredible shoot-off arrow in the recurve men's gold medal match at the fourth stage of the 2018 Hyundai Archery World Cup in Berlin, Germany. The last time the pair faced each other was at the Nanjing 2014 Youth Olympic Games, where Lee beat Gazoz in straight sets. In Berlin the contest was much less one-sided.

Lee Eun Gyeong beat home favourite Lisa Unruh to the recurve women's individual gold medal, qualifying herself for the season-ending final in the process – but eliminating teammate Kang Chae Young. Lee's teammate Jung Dasomi also won bronze over Tan Ya-Ting of Chinese Taipei.

Chinese Taipei beat Korea in an amazing shoot-off to take the recurve men's team gold medal. Wei Chung-Heng delivered an arrow in the X-ring when he needed not only a 10, but a better 10 than Im Dong Hyun's last shot to claim victory for Chinese Taipei. While the Korean men were relegated to silver, the women team did leave Berlin with gold, taking a straight-set victory over Great Britain.

Frenchwoman Sophie Dodemont ticked off three major achievements in Berlin. She won two gold medals – compound women's individual and team – and qualified for circuit's season-ending final in Samsun, Turkey. It's her first World Cup individual title at age 44.

It had been years since the French women had brought back a team medal. They beat India by one point to win the compound women's team title in Germany, handing India a second silver in the event on the season.

Croatia beat the world number one ranked USA compound men's team to gold to win the nation's first ever World Cup team victory. Domagoj Buden won a second medal for the stage with individual silver, defeated by Mike Schloesser, as it was the Dutchman's second stage win of the season after Antalya.
